Medicaid lag hurts agencies

Health depts. face cuts if cash doesn't come soon

NEW FRA STAFF WRITER

Three private companies that took over management of Kentucky's Medicaid system in November have become a clogged channel between payments from the state and the hospitals and doctors who need the money.

Jennie Stuart Medical Center, the Christian and Todd County health departments and Pennyroyal Mental Health Center are awaiting months' worth of back payments, causing major budget shortfalls.

The Christian County Health Department which relies on Medicaid for about a quarter of its annual revenue, has cut 12 staff members since July, said Mark Pyle, the department's director. The reimbursement lag is one of several reasons, Pyle said. Pennyroyal Mental Health Center has extended its line of credit. The Todd County Health Department has required extra money from the county's general fund.

State Auditor Adam Edelen announced Wednesday he was shifting resources in his department to create a unit that will monitor the Medicaid system. Edelen promised an "expansive review" of the system later this year and recommended 10 steps toward improvement.

Medicaid payments began to trickle into local agencies in January. Still, as the agencies' reserves are depleting, and some face the prospect of more cuts if the situation doesn't change soon.

Proposal aims to protect teachers from unpaid OT

BY BENJAMIN JOUBERT NEW FRA STAFF WRITER

A bill amendment recently introduced in the House Education Committee would mandate additional pay to teachers who surpass a set workload, provided the school's school sitebased council has not set such a

According to the amendment, teachers would only be required to work 15 minutes before and after the beginning and end of the school day. In addition, teachers would be paid to attend meetings, additional supervisions and extracurricular duties that add up to more than one hour a week. Further, preschool and elementary teachers should have at least 250 minutes of weekly planning time. Middle and secondary school teachers will have at least one period daily for planning time.

Any teacher working more than the set guidelines would be compensated at their prorated wage, according to the bill.

Currently, the law requires school site-based councils to set the time policies for teachers. If passed, the amendment would not be required law for teachers, but instead, would serve as a default policy for situations where a site-based council does not define teachers' work hours, said Rep. John Tilley, D-Hopkinsville. Tilley is one of the bill's sponsors.

Ryan Amerson, Hopkinsville High School social studies teacher, said he typically uses some of his personal time each day for work. Amerson said the bill would help protect teachers against excessive overtime hours, but that he hadn't seen such requirements in Christian County

District teachers are compensated well for putting in many hours and working extracurricular activities, Amerson said. Right now, the HHS site-based council has a set policy similar to the one introduced in the amendment.

Kendra Terrell, a North Drive Middle School social studies teacher, said most teachers don't get into extracurricular activities for money, but because it is something they want

Both Terrell and Amerson said they had not been required to work a lot of overtime hours and the extracurricular activities they volunteered for were typically once-a-week commit-

The bill has been introduced previously, but was never passed, Tilley said. If the amendment passes the House, it will go the Senate for approval.

2 more US troops killed by Afghan partners

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Two U.S. troops were gunned down by two Afghan soldiers and an accomplice Thursday, the latest of six American service members killed by their Afghan partners since the burning of Muslim holy books at a U.S. base last week sent anti-Americanism soaring in a nation that has long distrusted foreigners.

The killings come at a time when international troops have stepped up training and mentoring of Afghan soldiers, police and government workers so the Afghans can take the lead and the foreign forces go home. Success of the partnership, the focus of the U.S.-led coalition's exit strategy, is threatened by a rising number of Afghan police and soldiers - or militants disguised in their uniforms — who are turning their guns on their foreign

The latest victims were killed on a joint U.S.-Afghan base in Zhari district of southern Kandahar province by two Afghan soldiers and Afghan civilian literacy instructor who fired from a sentry tower, according to U.S. and Afghan officials. NATO forces shot and killed two of the assailants, apparently the soldiers, said Pentagon press secretary George Little.

On Feb. 25, two U.S. military advisers were found dead with shots to the back of the head inside the Afghan Interior Ministry in Kabul. Two U.S. troops were killed Feb. 23 by an Afghan soldier during an anti-Western protest over the Quran burning.

The U.S. apologized for the burning, saying the Islamic texts were mistakenly sent to a garbage burn pit Feb. 20 at Bagram Air Field, north of Kabul. But the incident raised what had been simmering animosity toward outsiders to a full boil. Deadly protests raged around the nation for six days — the most visible example of a deep-seated resentment bred by what Afghans view is a general lack of respect for their culture and religion.

Afghan policeman Khalid Khiri turns his head now and spits when he sees a U.S. military convoy roll

The 25-year-old policeman says it was fine to fight alongside the Americans. But after the Muslim holy books were burned at a U.S. base, he says he detests them.

"If they're going to burn the Quran, we don't want them here," he said this week on a road just south of Kabul. "They will never be forgiven for betraying the holy book.'

Afghans have staged demonstrations in the past over NATO airstrikes that have inadvertently killed civilians, deadly traffic accidents involving U.S. military vehicles and night raids that Afghans say violate their privacy, disrespect women and lead to the detention of innocents. But desecration of the Muslim holy book struck at the heart of the Afghan people and

Thousands unleashed their anger in the largest display of anti-Americanism so far in a war that has claimed the lives of at least 1,779 members of the U.S. military, according to an Associated Press count. The demonstrations, which left more than 30 people dead, also were a venue for war-weary Afghans to express their frustration that tens of thousands of international troops and billions of dollars in foreign aid have not brought them peace or major improvements to their daily lives. Hundreds of Western advisers were told not to report to government ministries and a few are just starting to trickle

Ky. woman sentenced for killing expectant mother

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Eric Stice dropped his head into his hands and cried Thursday as the woman who killed his younger sister was sentenced to life in prison with no chance

For Stice and his family, Kathy Michelle Cov's sentencing in Bowling Green ends the legal case stemming from the slaying of 21-year-old Jamie Stice, but not their suffering.

"There is no justice in this case," Eric Stice said after the sentencing. "Words cannot express what I would do to Kathy Coy if I could.

Warren Circuit Judge John Grise handed down the sentence Coy agreed to when she pleaded guilty but mentally ill last month to killing Stice and taking her baby boy alive from her womb. The plea allowed Coy to avoid a death sentence if convicted by a jury. The boy, Isaiah Allen Stice

Reynolds, survived and lives with his

Coy, dressed in an orange jail jumpsuit and shackled at the hands and feet with her hair pulled into a tight bun, did not speak during the sentencing. At times, as Stice's family addressed her and the court, Coy, 34, closed her eyes and dropped her chin to her chest. She showed no reaction as deputies led her from the courtroom after the hearing.

Grise said the word evil is used even for small disagreements or disputes, and is overused by attorneys and

"Here, however, was evil at work,"

Grise said. Prosecutors said Coy had befriended Stice on Facebook and used a stun gun to subdue the pregnant woman last April after luring her out of the house by saying they were going baby-supply shopping. Police said after Coy stunned Stice, she slit her wrists, cut the baby from her body and brought the baby, a uterus, ovaries and a placenta to a local hospital. The umbilical cord was still attached, police said.

Coy, who has children of her own living with other relatives, initially told police she gave birth to the boy, then said she bought him for $550. Police searched Coy's home and computer, finding links to two pregnant women on her Facebook page. Investigators found one of the women unharmed, but couldn't find Stice. Coy eventually led detectives to a wooded area off a dirt road, where Stice's remains were found April 14.

Police found the stun gun and two knives believed to have been used in

In statements to the court and after the sentencing, Stice's family and friends were torn between condemning Coy and celebrating a murdered woman they called the "Little Angel Mom." Her cousin, Carolyn Miracle, said Jamie Stice had been "ready to be a mommy" when she was slain. Kathleen Smith, the paternal grandmother of Isaiah, looked directly at Coy as she read a statement saying, "If you knew Jamie, you couldn't help but love her." Smith then lashed out at Coy, who closed her eyes.

"The death penalty would be too merciful for you," Smith said.

Miracle said her family was devastated by Jamie Stice's death, with her uncle unable speak about it and others still haunted by the loss of the expectant mother. Miracle said her aunt, Jeannie Stice, had "her heart stomped

"Kathy Coy decided she would play God and took our Jamie from us, Miracle said. "There's no amount of time you can give Kathy Coy that would be enough. There is a higher court that will judge Kathy."

March is colon cancer awareness month; 63 percent are screened annually, 900 die

FROM THE KENTUCKY PRESS NEWS SERVICE

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The Kentucky Department for Public Health, along with the Kentucky Cancer Program at the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville, is helping to promote "Dress in Blue Day" by asking Kentuckians to wear blue on Friday to promote colon cancer screening.

During a rally at the Capitol, Gov. Steve Beshear signed a proclamation designating March 2012 Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month. In his current budget proposal, Beshear seeks funding for the colon cancer screening for 4,000 uninsured Kentuckians.

"About 2,600 new cases of colon cancer are diagnosed in Kentucky each year resulting in nearly 900 deaths," Steve Davis, M.D., acting DPH commissioner, said in a statement. "With more awareness and screenings, we can significantly reduce this number and help more Kentuckians lead longer, healthier lives.' According to DPH, colon cancer is 85 to 95 percent curable when found early, underscoring the need for preventive health exams. These screenings will find abnormalities or early signs of cancer.

Things got a little cramped through this particular portion of Mammoth Cave, known as "Fat Man's Misery."

MAMMOTH: Exploring the largest known cave system in the world turned to an equally massive source: Mammoth

"Without Mammoth Cave, we could be driving on the opposite side of the road today," joked Richard Howell, my guide through a portion of the cave sys-

A former high school science teacher — and my source for how we beat the Brits for the second time in a row — Howell, 63, did not let the dark of the cave dim his excitement in recounting the history of the world's longest cave system.

He spoke at great length about slaves working in the caves, drilling holes in poplar trees in order to transport water in and the finished product out. He explained in great detail why certain portions of the cave walls were certain colors, the rock types that make up the caves, and how receding water could create markings in

I found perhaps his least scientific explanation the most vivid, though.

"Mammoth Cave is like a bowl of spaghetti," Howell declared shortly after the start of the two-hour "Historic Tour.

The large, outer shell of granite surrounding the cave mirrors a bowl, he said. The passages, all 392 winding miles of them, serve as the spaghetti in Howell's metaphor.

It was easy to imagine squeezing mv wav through a contorted noodle as we delved deeper into the cave. Walls that balloon enough to hold small houses constrict moments later to brush your hips. At 5 feet, 10 inches tall, I'm certainly not a giant, but I had to crouch, bob and weave constantly during the trek.

There were only 10 of us on the trip, but Howell said that, during the summer, every tour hits its 120person capacity. The smaller crowd was much nicer, in my opinion; I couldn't imagine trying to maneuver through those tight spots, or trying to hear a guide, when there are 50 antsy teenagers jostling with one another next to you.

Crowds have paid to tour the cave since 1816, Howell said. It's the second-oldest tourist attraction in the U.S., behind Niagara Falls. Back in the day, more slaves would lead you through the passages with only the guiding light of a candle or whale-oil lamp. Howell showed us a similar lamp, then let a small boy on the tour blow it out and pitch us into darkness.

'That wasn't so bad,' said the boy's brother, looking relieved when Howell flipped the light switch again.

Remnants of smoke from the earliest candles and lamps can still be seen today, just some of the evidence that the dry, undisturbed environment of a cave can preserve just about anything (including the materials used to glean the saltpeter). Slave guides would, for a tip, take their candles and write your names on the ceiling with the smoke. I saw a "Baker" and a Shedd" next to dates from the mid-1800s.

One particular stretch of rock looked as thought it had been painted black. That's where a Methodist preacher would put the lanterns of his congregation before delivering his sermon from "Pulpit Rock" in the 1800s during the hot Kentucky summer months, Howell explained.

As a history nerd, the fact that I could really see timbers cut by slaves, or the traces of smoke from lanterns, made the past seem so much more real to me. I could see Stephen Bishop — the slave who first explored the majority of the cave — laying down a narrow timber across "The Bottomless Pit" so a rich white man could go somewhere no other human had tread. From the pit — actually moth Dome, a cathedrallike chamber of beautiful rock, the cave just seems to be too much. I remember thinking that I could live down there for a week and still not see everything.

The national attraction a few miles north of Bowling Green seemed like a fitting end to my bucket series. I think the experience epitomized certain parts of my adventures: The cave represents the natural beauty that an outsider may not realize resides in western Kentucky. Troopers find 1 dead in car, 1 wounded in woods

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky State Police are investigating a fatal shooting in a car and an apparent self-inflicted wounding. The KSP stated in a news release that when troopers investigated a car sitting off Kv. 175 in Muhlenburg County on Wednesday afternoon, they found a woman had been shot to death.

Checking the woods nearby, troopers located a man about a mile away who had a gunshot wound that is believed to have been self-inflicted. He was airlifted to St. Mary's Hospital in Evansville, Ind.

"The preliminary investigation appears it was a murder-attempted suicide, in that it was not successful as far as the suicide goes," Recke said. Police identified the woman on Thursday as 36vear-old Amy L. Dennison of Beechmont and the man as 34-year-old Lennie J. Dillon of Drakesboro.

The federal government instituted Medicaid as part of the 1965 Social Security Act. According to federal law, states must provide Medicaid money to certain groups, including children in low-income families. Otherwise the states have discretion about eligibility requirements.

Beginning Nov. 1, the Kentucky government contracted with three private companies to manage the system. Officials estimated this would save $1.3 billion a year, according to a news release Edelen's office issued Wednesday.

Budget shortfalls

Since that time, the three managed care organizations have received $708 million in tax funds but have only paid out $420 million to hospitals, pharmacies and physicians, Edelen said. Complaints have streamed into Edelen's of-

This causes problems for some of the Pennyroyal Center clients, as each brand of psychiatric drugs affects them differently. "It's kind of like going backward," he said. "In dealing with a client, to me that's just unconscionable."

The Christian County Health Department receives about 25 percent of its revenue from Medicaid accounts: a total just above $1 million a year, or an average of $87,500 a month. It pays back 29 percent of this as a matching contribution.

Kentucky isn't exactly Walt Disney World, which dubs itself "the happiest place on Earth," according to a report released this week.

A new Gallup poll lists Kentucky as the second unhappiest state in the United States, ahead of only neighboring West Virginia.

Gallup relied on six measures to score each state on a well-being index, as well as six subindexes — including life evaluation, emotional health, work environment, physical health, healthy behavior and basic access to health care and healthy opportunities, such as places to exercise.

Grad party fund drive worthy gift for seniors

It would be easy to take for granted the work that happens every year about this time to put on a party for the graduating seniors at the four high schools in Hopkinsville.

That's because every year a new group of parents organizes the fundraising for Project Graduation, and every year they somehow pull it off and manage to raise $50,000 to $60,000.

It's not easy. They are beating the bushes for donations of cash, food and prizes while other groups OUR OPINION _ and charities in our community are also asking for donations that support equally good causes. We live in a generous community, but there are limits to what donors can do.

This year will mark the 24th Project Graduation in Hopkinsville. The party provides seniors a safe place to celebrate on graduation night and aims to ensure, for that one night anyway, that a local graduate is not hurt or killed in a vehicle crash caused by an intoxicated driver.

Christian County and Hopkinsville High schools always have graduation on the same day, and the Project Graduation party follows their commencement exercises. University Heights Academy and Heritage Christian Academy typically have commencement on other nights, but their seniors join the public school students so there is one party for everyone.

The glue that holds the new group of parent volunteers together each year is Diane Pyle, an employee of Christian County High School who coordinates Project Graduation each year.

Pyle said the four high schools will have about 550 graduates this year. Each senior may bring one guest to the party, and many parents also attend to help run games and serve food. In all, about 1,000 people will attend the party at the James E. Bruce Convention Center.

Most of the Project Graduation money raised through donations, the Cow Pasture Bingo and other fundraising events will go toward cash prizes for the seniors. It is one of the best enticements to keep the students at the party until sunrise.

If a parent or student asks you to buy a Cow Pasture Bingo ticket, consider it a graduation gift for 550 kids. And if no one asks you for help, call or write to them. You can reach Pyle at 887-7053 or 424-8856. The address for Project Graduation is P.O. Box 291, Hopkinsville, KY. 42241.

Project Graduation is this community's way of telling seniors that we care about them. We shouldn't take that for granted.

"A rich man without charity is a rouge; and perhaps it would be no difficult matter to prove that he is also a fool."

Henry Fielding English novelist (1707-1754)

Meet Levi, the first grandchild would like to introduce you to my first grandchild, Levi. He is a boy. He has Cooper feet. I have not met him yet. You see, he will not be born until the end of April. But because of sonograms that can be transmitted over the Internet, I have seen him. I have watched him stretch, yawn, and suck his thumb. I can already make out his body parts. Without a doubt, he has my husband's and son's foot structure.

There is no question that the baby who is still in his mother's womb is a boy.

This brings me to asking why the General Assembly is against allowing pregnant women who may be considering an abortion to see a sonogram of their unborn baby.

WILLEE COOPER

The Senate has already passed a Sonogram Bill (SB103), and it has moved on to the House, where it is being held hostage in Health and Welfare Committee by the Chairman, Tom Burch. In fact the Senate has been trying to make such a bill law since 2000. (A bill cannot be voted upon in either chamber unless it first comes out of committee and is presented to the chamber for

The chairman has unbelievable power on what is able to come to the floor.

oill's sponsor, Republican Jack Westwood, of Erlangen, proposed the same bill in other sessions, declaring, "I want to make sure women understand fully what is happening if they get an opportunity to see the little fingers and toes of the baby that they're thinking about aborting. ... If they do, then they may change their mind and avoid a decision to do something they may be haunted by for the rest of their lives. I want them to make informed choices and, veah, my ultimate goal is they'll choose to keep their baby; they will not kill their baby.'

We have long learned and have come to agree since the horrors of the NAZIs' medical malpractice that patients are entitled to know about all aspects of the medical procedure they are seeking. Why is it that women who are seeking abortions cannot see the other side of the story before the abortion is performed? Many abortion advocates oppose the bill citing interference in the doctor-patient relationship. Senator Westwood said the bill allows women the opportunity to decline to see the ultrasound if they choose not to view it. Teresa Watson, executive director of the Pregnancy Resource Center, declared: "They say a picture is worth a thousand words. Well, this is something that will give her (the mother) more information than she had before. She can see the reality of the child very simply on the screen and I believe she deserves to be able to see that.

Shirley Jones of Planned Parenthood of Kentucky indicated the abortion business opposes the bill to help women get more informa-tion, but admitted that, "Offering that information is certainly something the physician and the patient will want to discuss.'

Many years ago, when I was in college, I thought that abortion was a woman's right. Back then, I really never thought about when life began or that there was indeed a baby in the womb. Thanks to mod-ern technology, I can emphatically declare I now have no doubt that there is a living child in every mother's womb! Come on, Chairman Burch, do the fair thing and allow this to come to the General Assembly for a vote. Then we will learn how our representatives really feel about this issue.

Diversity essential consideration in school superintendent search

The Editor, New Era, I agree with your Feb. 18 editorial that the decision to cancel Brady Link's contract needed a vote. I also agree with your Feb. 20 editorial regarding the need for all people in Christian County to work together for the betterment of our schools.

It is vital that the selection committee and pool of candidates for the position reflect the demographic makeup of the community and give a qualified minority candidate serious consideration. The diverse makeup of our schools, at the very least, de-

Our schools are made up of a large percentage of African-American students but we currently do not have an African-Americans serving on the school board. Our community cannot allow the same to happen with the selection committee.

The time has come for the Christian County school system to conduct a nationwide search and seek a superintendent from a diverse background with experience in turning similar diverse school systems around. John R. Banks Jr.

Academic purpose of district should determine next leader

The Editor, New Era. Since we are about to choose a new superintendent for the public schools of Christian County, I believe we need to answer several questions first.

They are as follows:

Is the primary mission of the public schools of Christian County to provide athletic teams to compete in the Kentucky High School Athletic Association or is the primary mission of the public schools to educate the children of Christian County? I believe it is the latter. If it is the latter, we will need to set academic standards that all students must make an attempt to meet. Not attempting to meet the standards will not be tolerated!

If it is the former, we must set athletic standards that all students must attempt to meet. Academic standards will take a back seat to athletic standards!

We must decide whether the Student Code of Conduct is to be applied to all students, regardless of who they are, or decide that the application of the Student Code of Conduct will depend upon who the student is and not what violation of the code happened! I don't like this last interpretation of the code. I hope we don't go there.

We must decide whether our hiring policies are in place to hire the best qualified people to teach our children or whether they are in place to give employment to local people regardless of their qualifications. Hope the former is the objective.

We must decide whether we are hiring a superintendent who will acquiesce to the wishes of the board regardless of whether the wishes of the board are good educational policy or hire a superintendent that is not afraid of not having his contract renewed. Hence, the superintendent will do what is right! I hope we will do

All responsible comments are welcome as usual.

Santorum's bid too far from view of most voters nominate Rick Santorum, they will lose. The prospect of four more years of Barack Obama holds some appeal for many Americans, but probably not for most Republicans. It may give doubters among them some comfort, however, to know that Obama and Santorum share the same prayer: that Santorum be the Republican nominee. It gives me no pleasure to rap Santorum.

et me be blunt: If Republicans a man I know and respect even if I disagree with him on some issues. Not that he minds. He's a scrapper who loves a fight — and he forgives. Bottom line: Santorum is a good man. He's just a good man in the wrong century.

This doesn't necessarily mean he's wrong about everything, but he's so far out of step with the majority of Americans that he can't hope to win the votes of moderates and independents so crucial to victory in November. The Republican Party's insistence on conservative purity, meanwhile, will result in the cold comfort of defeat with honor and, in the longer term, potential extinction.

Increasingly, the party is growing grayer and whiter. Nine out of 10 Republicans are non-Hispanic white and more than half are highly religious, according to Gallup.

This isn't news, but when this demographic is suddenly associated with renewed debate about whether women should have access to contraception never mind abortion — suddenly they begin to look like the Republican Brotherhood. Add to that perception the abhorrent, pre-abortion ultrasound legislation proposed in Virginia, and you can kiss the pope's ring and voters' retreating back-

The proposed law, temporarily tabled, called for women seeking an abortion to be forced to submit less government intervention, begin think

Informed consent is, in my view, a reasonable goal. Surely removal of a human fetus deserves the same level of awareness we would insist upon in removing, say, a gall bladder. If some women change their minds after viewing the contents of their womb, then they obviously needed more information than they had going in. Still, any procedure should be voluntary, and in will is rape by any other name. Obviously, this is no place for the state. The Virginia bill and the broader (bogus) message often repeated on leftleaning talk shows that Republicans are campaigning against birth control have created a perfect storm for defeat. The math is clear: Sixty-seven percent of women are either Democrats (41 percent) or independents (26 percent); more women than men vote; 55 percent of women ages 18-22 voted in the 2008 presidential elec-

Republicans are caught in a nearly impossible situation, none more than the more temperate-minded Mitt Romney. It is important to remember, however, why contraception came up in the first place. Republicans were forced to man their battlements by the Obama administration's new health care rule mandating that Catholic organizations pay for contraception in violation of conscience. From there, things spiraled out of the realm of religious liberty, where this debate belongs, and into the fray of moral differ-

Santorum's original surge was based not on social issues but on his authenticity and his ability to identify with middleclass struggles. He was the un-Romney. But now this appealing profile has been occluded by social positions that make him an outlier to mainstream Americans.

Republicans may sleep better if they nominate The Most Conservative Person In The World, but they won't be seeing the executive branch anytime soon. It's too bad this election season got lost in the weeds of religious conviction.

It wouldn't have happened if the Obama administration had simply taken one of several other routes available for providing birth control to women who want it. Instead, Obama aimed right at the heart of the Republican Party and, one can only assume, got exactly what he wanted: a culture war in which Rick Santorum would be the natural point man and, in the broader public's perception, the voice of the GOP.

Chambers was arrested and charged with first-degree unlawful imprisonment and fourth-degree assault.

He remained in Christian County Jail Thursday evening on a $5,000 bond.

Clarksville, TN - Gary Mathews Chrysler Jeep Dodge Pre-owned Supercenter in Clarksville, is holding its biggest pre-owned super sale in the history of the company. On SATURDAY, MARCH 3, 2012, they plan to eliminate their entire pre- owned inventory

"Eliminator Sale," ™

During this one-day event, every preowned vehicle will be offered for thousands below original price - including vehicles for only $49*

Mark Blick, General Manager at Gary Mathews Chrysler Jeep Dodge Pre-owned Supercenter in Clarksville, offers this explanation for this unprecedented sale. "We've already had record sales in our new car department this past year, and we're overstocked with trade- ins. Then we've added a big inventory of factory program cars and some real bargains we've gotten at the auctions. So, now we're over-loaded with inventory. It's that simple." Mark adds, "Our goal is to reduce the amount of our overall inventory to a more manageable number, and to do that, we've got to price this inventory ridiculously low. Expect retail prices to be marked down as much as $3000.00 to $7000.00."

Mark further added "The community has shown us great support throughout the years, and we're very grateful. We would rather give the great deals to the public than unload these vehicles at the auction. We believe that people will not only enjoy getting a great deal, they'll also have a lot of fun doing it.

Imagine the excitement of being able to buy a vehicle for just $49*. Not $49 down, $49* total."

Almost 200 pre- owned cars, trucks, vans, and SUV's are available for this huge event. "We absolutely must reduce our pre- owned inventory at all costs; so customers can expect these vehicles to be sold at near or below wholesale price," he stated. "Cars which would normally sell for $3000 to $20,000 will be sold for thousands less, and I mean thousands less! We truly will have a vehicle for everyone's budget." These vehicles are available at this price,

SATURDAY, MARCH 3, 2012, only at the Gary Mathews Chrysler Jeep Dodge Pre-owned Supercenter in Clarksville. Special arrangements have been made for a record number of customers, with event parking clearly marked. The According to Pete Hall, Used Car Manager at the Gary Mathews

"Eliminator Sale"™ begins at 10:00am, the "Price Eliminator" will cross out the retail price on each vehicle and replace it with the new "Eliminator Sale"™ price. Whoever is sitting behind the wheel of the vehicle will have the first chance to purchase the vehicle at the "Eliminator Sale"™ price. Prices will be cut one time to the "Rock Bottom" price, including vehicles for only $49*. will be the biggest event we've ever had," according to Mark and Pete. Customers are required to come early and register for entry to this incredible sale. Registration begins at 8am. "We expect a record number of people to leave with great vehicles at unheardof, low prices."

Ohio River bridges may bring local jobs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)— Gov. Beshear says a billion-dollar project to build two new Ohio River bridges in Louisville would bring thousands of jobs and provide a lasting economic boost to the region.

Beshear spoke Thursday to representatives of hundreds of companies hoping to win a contract to build a new Interstate 65 bridge, which is half of a $2.6 billion project to erect two new Ohio River bridges in Louisville. The building of a span on the city's eastern end will be led by Indiana officials.

"Today is an important step in a process that leaves no doubt that we will bring to reality a project that this region has been talking about but has been unable to deliver since Lyndon Johnson was president and gasoline was 35 cents a gallon," Beshear said.

Speaking to contractors from 32 states and Canada, Beshear said the bridge build would be the largest transportation project in Kentucky's history, and would provide jobs even after the first vehicles ride across the new spans.

"I'm talking about the expansion of economic opportunities that come to a region when it has a modern, effective network of roads and bridges that businesses need to grow and prosper," Beshear said.

Under a plan to have the states split the work, Kentucky would be responsible for building the six-lane downtown bridge, refurbishing the current I-65 bridge and upgrading a tangled highway interchange notorious for a high rate of crashes. Indiana would construct a four-lane bridge, new highway linkages and an underground tunnel that travels below a historic estate in eastern Jefferson County. Tolls would help to cover the cost of construction.

Lady Tigers chase 1st region crown

BY KEITH JENKINS NEW ERA ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The Hopkinsville Lady Tigers played keep away for more than an entire quarter of play Tuesday night during their game against Madisonville-North Hopkins in the first round of the Region 2 girls' basketball tour-

Hopkinsville coach Tonya Wells said she was only matching the style of play of Lady Maroons coach John Paul Cummings, who held the ball from the Lady Tigers in order to "shorten the game" and hopefully give his team "the best chance.'

"I didn't want to play like that," Wells said. "They came out and they did it to me in the first half, so I thought, 'Well, I'm up by nine. Come play me man-to-man.' If they would have came out and played me, we would have played the game.'

The District 8 champion Lady Tigers defeated District 7 runner-up Madisonville 30-14 for their first region tournament win since 1998. There likely won't be any holding of the ball tonight, as the top two teams in the region — Hopkinsville and Henderson County — battle for a berth into the Region 2 title game. Weather permitting, the Lady Tigers

HCA (11-12) led 18-9 at halftime and was cruising until North Hardin cut the lead to 23-21 entering the fourth period

"We played really well in the first half and then they came out and jumped on us really quick in the third quarter," HCA coach Carol Faulkner said. "We were able to get some key rebounds and make some key shots when we needed them.

Platero made two free throws and Newton added a free throw down the stretch to seal the victory for the Lady Warriors, who played without leading scorer Grace Waldron, who is out for the rest of the season.

"We needed some people to step up and they did that," Faulkner said.

Hoptown bullies Caldwell

BY KEITH JENKINS NEW ERA ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

MADISONVILLE, Ky. — Hopkinsville hadn't played a boys basketball game in nearly a week and it showed.

In their first game since claiming the District 8 championship last Friday, the Tigers fought through a slow start and rolled to a 79-48 win over Caldwell County in the first round of the Region 2 boys' basketball tournament Thursday night at Madisonville-North Hopkins High School.

"In the first quarter, I thought we came out a little sluggish," Hop-town coach Tim Haworth said. "I thought we were very good defensively. I thought offensively we kind of stirred it a little Haworth bit. That's what happens when you're not in a rhythm. In the second quarter, I thought we did a lot better attack-Hopkinsville (30-2) led District 7 13-straight game, turned it on in the second quarter and dominated the rest of the way.

The Tigers went on a 19-2 run to push ahead 35-11 with less than 2:00 to play in the second. Along the way, Demarius Cager tossed a pass off the backboard to seventh-seeded The Commodores (22-8) play 13th-ranked Tennessee in the quarterfinals today. Mississippi State finished 14-16, not putting up much of a fight in coach Sharon Fanning-Otis' last game before retiring from coaching. Vanderbilt scored 12 of the first 14 points and led 34-22 at halftime.

Jasmine Lister added 13 points, and Stephanie Holzer and Tiffany Clarke each had 10.

The Lady Bulldogs

pulled within 40-37 with a 9-0 run with 12:20 left on Diamber Johnson's 3pointer, set up by Porsha Porter's steal, but never got closer than three as Vandy pushed back the lead. Foggie's 3 with 2:35 left gave Vandy its biggest lead to that point, 62-46.

Johnson and Porter each had 12 points for Mississippi State.

■Florida 70, Auburn 60: Jordan Jones scored 17 points as eighth-seeded Florida beat ninth-seeded Auburn 70-60 on Thursday in the first round of the Southeastern Conference tournament.

The game marked the end of Auburn coach Nell Fortner's career. Fortner announced on Feb. 21 she was retiring after her eighth season with the Tigers and 18th year as a head coach.

The Gators (19-11) led by as many as 18 points in the second half and held a 57-41 lead when Hasina Muhammad tipped in a shot for Auburn. That basket launched a 10-2 run that cut Florida's lead to eight points with 2:46 to play, but the Tigers wouldn't get any closer.

Florida will face topseeded Kentucky today.

■Arkansas 67, Mississippi 47: C'eira Ricketts scored 10 points and Arkansas beat Mississippi 67-47 on Thursday night in the first round the Southeastern Conference tournament.

The fifth-seeded Razorbacks (22-7) will face fourth-seeded LSU in the quarterfinals today.

Arkansas scored the first eight points of the game and never trailed.

■No. 25 South Car-

Markeshia Grant also scored 10 points for South Carolina.

Jasmine Robinson led Alabama (12-19) with 11 points, and Kyra Crosby 10. The Tide scored a season-low 14 in the first half and led only once on Robinson's tip-in for the first bucket.

South Carolina scored the next nine points.

Tech ousts Wilford, SEMO

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kevin Murphy scored 24 points as Tennessee Tech built a big lead, then rallied for a 77-73 victory over Southeast Missouri State Thursday night in an Ohio Valley Conference tournament quarterfi-

The Golden Eagles (19-12), who got 18 points from Jud Dillard, led 42-27 at halftime. But Southeast Missouri State (15-16) rallied behind Tyler Stone. He posted a 24-point, 11-rebound double-double for the Red-

Nick Niemczyk and former Christian County High School star Corey Wilford scored 16 points apiece and helped key a second-half rally enabling Southeast Missouri State to tie it at 64-all. Down 55-36, the Redhawks rallied, then took a 70-66 lead on Stone's jumper with 2:13 left.

But Murphy (10 for 20 from the field) stuck two jumpers and Zac Swansey a 3-pointer for a 73-70 lead. Zach Bailey made two foul shots and Swansey dunked with 0:03 left. Stone's trey with a second remaining was too little, too seed Murray State at 6 p.m. today in the semifinals.

■Morehead 68, Jacksonville St. 54: Nashville, Tenn., Angelo Warner scored 18 points to lead Morehead State over Jacksonville State 68-54 on Thursday night in the Ohio Valley Conference tournament quarterfi-

Morehead State led by two, 24-22, at halftime and outscored the Gamecocks 44-32 in the final 20 minutes. The Eagles (18-14) shot 52.6 percent in the second half (10 of 19).

Milton Chavis added 14 points. Drew Kelly 12 and Ty Proffitt 11 for Morehead State, which won the OVC tournament in 2009 and 2011.

The third-seeded Eagles will play Tennessee State in the semifinals today.

Morehead State shot 47.5 percent from the field (19 of 40) and made 27 of 35 from the free-throw line against Jacksonville State. Warner made eight of his 10 free throws.

Jacksonville State (15-18), the seventh seed, was led by Ronnie Bogs and Tarvin Gaines with 12 points each and Mason Leggett with 11.

With their 45th SEC regular-season title wrapped up with a victory Saturday, the Wildcats were playing for tournament NCAA seeding and a chance to finish league play with a perfect record, joining the 1996 and '03 squads as the only teams in the conference to accomplish the feat since 1956. Kentucky hasn't lost since falling by a point against Indiana on Dec. 10 and is on its longest winning streak since that 2003 team won 26 games.

Soriano may move to cleanup for Cubs

MESA, Ariz. (AP) After losing two of their top three run producers from last season, the Chicago Cubs might open 2012 with outfielder Alfonso Soriano as their cleanup hitter. Spring training games don't start until Sunday, and new manager Dale Sveum said his lineup is still very much a work in progress. But his early thoughts include newly acquired outfielder David DeJesus leading off and either first baseman Bryan LaHair or Soriano batting fourth. The team lost third baseman Aramis

Ramirez (26 home runs, 93 RBIs) and first baseman Carlos Pena (28 and 80) from last Soriano originally signed his eight-year, $136 million contract to be the Cubs' leadoff hitter. He has hit just .196 with two home runs in 14 career starts batting fourth. Soriano, who has three years left on that deal, hit from fifth to seventh in Mike Quade's lineup last season.

Cardinals, Molina reach 5-year deal

JUPITER, Fla. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have agreed to a five-year, $75 million contract with four-time Gold Glove catcher Yadier Molina.

The team announced the details Thursday. The contract begins next year and will keep Molina in St. Louis through the 2017 season. There is a mutual, $15 million option for a sixth year.

General manager John Mozeliak says the Cardinals consider Molina to be the best catcher in baseball. The 29-year-old Molina is a lifetime Cardinal and one of the best defensively at any position, winning a platinum glove last season in voting by fans. He also is coming off the best offensive season of his career.

Love leads Honda Classic

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) - Davis Love III looked more like a player than a Ryder Cup captain Thursday at the Honda Classic.

Love made a hole-in-one on the 197vard fifth hole and tied the course record at PGA National with a 6-under 64, giving him a two-shot lead. He took advantage of soft and relatively calm conditions in the morning.

Rory McIlroy was in the group at 66, needing a win this week to go to No. 1 in Tiger Woods needs a good round just to have a chance going into the weekend. Playing the Honda Classic for the first time as a pro, Woods twice lost momentum with sloppy bogeys and failed to convert a routine up-and-down on the par-5 18th for a 1-over 71. He was seven shots out of the lead, right on the cut line going into today.

Woods missed only three greens, but McIlroy also got off to a good start, only this held much more promise.

The 22-year-old from Northern Ireland is looking like the world's best player with each tournament he plays.

A week ago, he lost in the final of the Match Play Championship. As even more attention shifts to the U.S. Open champion, McIlroy seems to embrace it. He made his opening round at PGA National look easy, rarely putting pressure on any part of his game. He birdied the last two holes of the back nine, made the turn and picked up another birdie on the par-4 second by smartly playing short of the bunkers and firing his approach into a breeze to about 18 feet from a back pin. His final birdie came on the par-3 seventh, when caddie J.P. Fitzgerald talked him into a hard 6-iron that stopped 12 feet short of the cup. "It was pretty stress-free out there,"

McIlroy said. "I hit quite a few fairways and a lot of greens and gave myself a lot of chances, and that's sort of what you need to do around this golf course.

Hopkinsville used its press defense and length to force Caldwell, who was led by Elijah Sindelar's 13 points, into committing more than 30 turnovers on the night.

Wilt Chamberlain, of the Philadelphia Warriors, holds a sign reading "100" in the dressing room on March 2, 1962, in the team's locker room in Hershey, Pa., after he scored 100 points in a 169-147 win over the New York Knickerbockers.

Chamberlain's 100-point game hits 50-year mark

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Wilt Chamberlain didn't just tower over his peers, he left records that endured for decades. And for 50 years, one mighty number has stood as the Mount Everest of sport's magic numbers.

100 points.

At 25, Chamberlain had already crafted a career built on steady, sustained and spectacular excellence. Playing at 7foot-1 and 260 pounds for the Philadelphia Warriors, Chamberlain held the single-game record of 78 points (in three overtimes) and the regulation mark of 73 in January 1962.

One hundred points was no flash of momentary greatness. It was a fireball of scoring that will likely never be topped — and put Chamberlain everywhere from the record book, to "The Ed Sullivan Show," to an unmatched spot in the short list of sport's alltime unbelievable performances.

But on March 2, 1962 at the Hershey Sports Arena, hardly anyone noticed.

There were no TV cameras. Sports writers were scarce — and so were the fans. Only 4,124 (at $2.50 a ticket) attended the game, in fact, between the Warriors and the New York Knicks as the final stretch of the 1961-62 season dwindled down. The number of people who claimed they were there to witness history, however, could have stretched the East Coast.

And why not? The milestone, after all, changed the game forever.

"The 100-point game was a hyperbolic announcement of the rise of the black athlete in basketball," said author Gary Pomerantz, who wrote the complete narrative of that game in the 2005 book, WILT, 1962: The Night of 100 Points and the Dawn of a New Era.

No NBA star has really come close to scoring 100 points. Los Angeles Lakers star Kobe Bryant had the luxury of the 3-point shot (he hit seven) when he scored 81 on Jan. 22, 2006. Michael Jordan never topped 69. Allen Iverson hit 60. David Robinson scored 10 less field goals than Chamberlain made in the 100point game when he scored 71 in 1994.

"I'd hate to try and break it myself," Chamberlain said, according to Pomerantz's book.

Chamberlain played all 48 minutes in Philadelphia's 169-147 win over the Knicks. He shot 36 of 63 from the floor and an un-Wilt like 28 of 32 from the free-throw line. Chamberlain, a woeful 51.1 percent career shooter from the line, attempted his free underhand throws against the Knicks.

"I personally don't think it will ever happen again," said Chamber-lain's Warriors' team-mate, Al Attles. "I don't know if a team will allow it to happen now."

Oh, the game came during a season when Chamberlain averaged 50.4 points a game.

"I played one game where he got 78 points and we lost," Attles said. "The guy got 50 regularly. It wasn't that big a deal." At least not through the first three quarters, when Chamberlain scored 69. While 100 is tough to imagine, think about this: Warriors public address announcer Dave Zinkoff would state the point total to the crowd as the number swelled in the fourth. When Chamberlain broke his own mark, Zinkoff told the fans, "Ladies and gentleman, a new scoring record has been created by Wilt Chamberlain!" "Then we all realized that this was going to happen," said Tom Meschery, who scored 16 that night for the Warriors. "It was comical, because from that point on, all the shots went to Wilt, all the passes went to Wilt and everybody on the Knicks team tried to get the ball to anybody except Wilt."

When grieving children, remember eternal life

DEAR REV. GRA-HAM: Why does God heal some people and not others? We prayed and prayed for my little niece's leukemia to go away, but God didn't heal her and she died. I have to admit it's hard not to feel bitter. — Mrs. D.

DEAR MRS. D. McL: I understand your hurt, but I want to assure you that God understands vour hurt even more than you do and wants to surround you with His love and compassion during this difficult time.

I don't fully know why God restores some people to health but doesn't do it for others.

Remember: God knows what it is to lose someone to death. His only Son died on the cross for us.

But let me ask you a question: Where is your little niece now?

Death has taken her, and you can't help but grieve over her passing.

But listen: She is in heaven now — and all her pain and weakness are gone.

Secret friend is sign of affair

DEAR AMY: My spouse developed a telephone addiction for a childhood friend. This relationship has been going on for several years but my husband has never mentioned it to me.

I learned of this by accident from a friend. When I approached him, he downplayed it as minimal casual contact. Later, he admitted he had a special connection are in touch often. He also says they are "just friends" and refuses to cut ties.

If they are "just friends," I cannot understand the total secrecy of this relationship. I am having a difficult time with this. It is as if they had conducted an intimate physical affair. The emotional distress has been devastating to me psychologically and it has devastated our marriage.

I am made out to be the villain by my husband and the other woman for demanding an end to it. I have

DEAR DEVAS TATED: Judging from the my inbox, emotional affairs are the new infidelity.

I don't want to make it seem like these nonsexual affairs are some sort of fadof-the-heart. They are very real, tangible and painful.

are being used in a grow-

Unsuspecting sellers get stuck when scammers pass off bogus cashiers checks, corporate checks, or personal checks. buyer to write the check for the correct amount. If the buyer refuses to send the correct amount, return the check. Dont send the merchandise.
